

HISTORIC WESTVILLE

Georgia's 1850's Living History Museum

Movies Made at Westville

Walt Disney's The Million-Dollar Dixie Deliverance (adventure) (1978). Starring Ben Jones, Sonny Shroyer. The Confederates kidnap five Yankee children for use as hostages. The children nurse a wounded Union Army soldier during their ordeal.

A Time for Miracles (biography) (1980), ABC movie nominated for an Emmy. Starring Kate Mulgrew as Mother Elizabeth Bayley Seton, Lorne Greene. A true story, Mother Seton (1774-1826) was a New Yorker who became the first canonized American saint in 1975. She started the Sisters of Charity and opened a school in Maryland.

The Long Riders (western) (1980). Starring Carradine, Quaid, Keach, and Guest brothers, plus Harry Carey, Jr. Director Walter Hill portrays the infamous James Gang in this western action film. The distinguishing feature of this film is its public-relations hook of using four sets of famous actor-brothers. David Carradine---Cole Younger; Keith Carradine---Jim Younger; Robert Carradine---Bob Younger; James Keach---Jesse James; Stacy Keach---Frank James; Dennis Quaid---Ed Miller; Randy Quaid---Clell Miller; Christopher Guest---Charlie Ford; Nicholas Guest---Bob Ford.

2001 Maniacs (horror) (2005). Starring Robert Englund. Modern college kids from the North are on their way to Spring break when they are lured into a nightmarish Brigadoon-type city. Angry Southerners emerge from the mists of Civil War times to carry out vengeance.

Andrew Jackson: The Good, the Bad and the Presidency. (biography) 2008. A PBS production detailing the life and presidency of Andrew Jackson.

Loddie Mae. (drama) 2009. Look for it on cable television. This independent production is about a young Georgia girl who went north to find a new life. After avoiding the vices of a large northern city and disillusion about life in the big city, she returned to Georgia and her southern roots.